Black Velvet and Other New Millinery Modes.

PRESENTING THE AUTHENTIC STYLES FOR LATE SUMMER AND EARLY AUTUMN WEAR.

How charming and intensely fascinating and becoming the New Millinery Modes are one cannot imagine without seeing them and trying them on.

In the displays which we are now making Black Velvet is emphasized above everything else. The models show clearly the great popularity small shapes will enjoy, vet there is a mul titude of designs.

Nearly every important branch of our export trade is adversely affected by export trade is adversely affected by the war conditions in Europe. The big-gest item is, of course, cotton. For the twelve months ending with June 30, 1914, the amount of raw cotton exported to all foreign countries was valued at 556, 560,000. The oil trade, especially mineral oils, is another important industry to feel the immediate effects of these wars.
Many contracts for Regie sales of tobacco to European countries have been canceled in the South. Lumber and
